2017-06-20	09:30	10:30	OEA Town Hall	This session will update active and closure communities on the Office of Economic Adjustment's activities, including its newest initiatives. Topics will include the fiscal 2018 budget request, technical assistance available to communities affected by a closure or realignment, grants for pre-BRAC planning and economic diversification, compatible use planning/joint land use studies and defense industry adjustment/defense supply chain mapping.	SPEAKER: Patrick O'Brien, Director, Office of Economic Adjustment
2017-06-20	09:30	10:30	The P3 Future of DoD	Over the past several decades, public-private partnerships have played a key role in supplying a variety of installation support functions — family housing, Army lodging, utilities and renewable energy — as well as helping the military services better use their real estate. The new administration's drive to make the federal government operate more efficiently is bringing renewed attention to P3s and raises the question as to what installation support activity is ripe to become the next to benefit from greater industry participation. The P3 Town Hall will explore ideas for public-private partnerships that have been on the drawing board but not yet implemented, such as facility management, as well as others that have been used but have not been introduced on a large scale such as barracks privatization.	MODERATOR: Hilary Jackler, Partner, Kutak Rock

2017-06-20	13:30	14:30	Can We Live in Harmony with Wind Farms?	As wind energy production has grown in many parts of the country, some defense communities have become concerned about the potential for wind farms to interfere with military radar and flight training, prompting lawmakers in a handful of states and Congress to advance proposals to restrict their development. Meanwhile, defense officials, with some exceptions, have said the department's process for reviewing projects allows potential impacts from turbines to be mitigated in virtually all cases. A panel representing the various stakeholders in this debate – state lawmakers, defense communities, defense energy siting officials, wind energy developers and environmental groups – is aimed at helping attendees better understand the potential risks associated with wind energy.	MODERATOR: Lucian Niemeyer, President, the Niemeyer Group SPEAKERS: Dr. Matthew McKinzie, Nuclear Program Director and Senior Scientist, Land and Wildlife Program, Natural Resources Defense Council David Belote, Senior Vice President, Cassidy & Associates Michael Cooper, Chairman, Oklahoma Strategic Military Planning Commission Mike Hrapla, Senior vice president of DOD programs, Matrix Design Group Ron Tickle, Executive Director, DoD Siting Clearinghouse
2017-06-20	13:30	14:30	What to Expect When You're Expecting BRAC	The panel will examine short- and long-term strategies employed by defense communities and states to prepare for past BRAC rounds. The panel, composed of community and state leaders and inside-the-Beltway consultants, will highlight successful approaches for strengthening the position of installations ahead of a BRAC and, potentially, attracting new missions.	MODERATOR: Mike Berger, Principal, Booz Allen Hamilton SPEAKERS: Patrick O'Brien, Director, Office of Economic Adjustment
2017-06-20	13:30	14:30	Defense Industry Adjustment - Overview and Lessons Learned	Amid an uncertain climate for defense spending, community leaders and economic developers are relying on a number of strategies to support and promote a robust and sustainable defense industrial base. This session will highlight approaches to help local defense firms capture new business in both defense and commercial markets.	MODERATOR: Erik Pages, President, EntreWorks SPEAKERS: Randy DeCleave, Partner, Kglobal Dan Spector, Principal, Simon Everett
2017-06-20	13:30	14:30	Best Practices in Working with a LRA Board of Directors	A successful local redevelopment authority needs to ensure its staff and board of directors work in tandem. 2017-06-21	08:00	09:00	Be Prepared for Today and Tomorrow – Community-Installation Liaison and Planning for Mission Sustainment, Mission Growth, and Mission Reduction	Planning is a continuous activity for military host communities; it shouldn't be limited to BRAC. Military communities and the installations they host have a wide range of planning issues to coordinate and address cooperatively: Being a good neighbor (socio-economic issues), looking at all partnering opportunities (P4), working towards compatible land use planning (encroachment and JLUS), joint master planning (future basing), creating greater green spaces (conservation/environmental), etc. This panel will discuss community-installation planning as a holistic process.	Rich Engel, Manager, National Capital Region Office and Senior Real Estate and Land Use Advisor, Marstel Day
2017-06-21	08:00	09:00	Reassessing the Model for Supplying Installation Energy	The 'next big thing' in defense energy, according to some experts, will be a shift toward an "energy as a service" model, under which a single entity will meet all of an installation's energy needs by combining on and offsite power generation, procurement authorities — including energy savings performance contracts, utilities privatization and power purchase agreements — and energy controls. Representatives from industry and the Air Force, the first service to test this new model, will describe how the approach could work and explore the consequences for the defense energy sector.	Keith Hoskins, Military Affairs Manager, Gulf Power Mark Correll, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Energy

2017-06-21	09:30	10:30	National Defense Strategy: An Insider's Guide	The nation faces a range of potential adversaries — growing aggression from China and Russia, the nuclear threat posed by North Korea and Iran, and terrorism — requiring the military to evolve in how it trains for and fights wars, and what skills and weapons its personnel need. This general session will offer an insider's look at the current threat environment facing the nation and the implications for defense strategy, future conflicts, new priorities for missions and personnel, and overseas basing. Experts will cover the changing nature of warfare, including the greater reliance on technology and cyberwarfare. They also will discuss the "force of the future," exploring high-demand skill profiles for service members along with new recruitment and retention policies.	Rep. Adam Smith (WA-9), U.S. House of Representatives; Ranking Member of the House Armed Services Committee Rep. Martha Roby (AL-2), Co-Chair, Defense Communities Caucus Rep. Joe Courtney (CT-2), Co-Chair, Defense Communities Caucus Michael O'Hanlon, Senior Fellow, The Brookings Institute
2017-06-21	09:30	10:30	Compatible Energy Siting	In April 2015, DoD's Office of Economic Adjustment announced it would begin providing support for state and local governments concerned about potential conflicts between renewable energy projects and military operations. This discussion session will explore efforts launched by several states to mitigate potential conflicts and how communities can avail themselves of future energy siting opportunities.	Cyrena Eitler, Compatible Use Program Director, Office of Economic Adjustment

2017-06-21	10:45	11:45	The Future of Commissaries and Post Exchanges	Following four years of declining sales and a new business model intended to eliminate their $1.4 billion annual subsidy, military commissaries face an uncertain future. Military exchanges already are operated as for-profit businesses, but a lasting drop in traffic at commissaries will cut into their sales and place their contributions to quality-of-life programs at risk. With commissaries and exchanges at a crossroads, the session will explore possible scenarios for sustaining the system, along with the potential impacts for defense communities.	Mike Higgins, Military Compensation and Retirement Modernization Commission Stephen Kay, Partner, Hurt Norton & Associates Phil Sakowitz, President at Sakowitz Operational Solutions Mike Immler, Deputy Director, Army & Air Force Exchange
2017-06-21	10:45	11:45	Defense Budget Deep Dive – What Is Really in DoD’s FY’18 Budget Request?	Defense budget experts will take a close look at the administration’s fiscal 2018 budget proposal to help attendees better understand how the plan would affect their communities. The discussion will highlight the accounts that are slated for a significant funding boost, whether there is sufficient funding to sustain the military’s aging infrastructure and DoD’s priorities for military construction.	Mike Jones, Member, The Spectrum Group
2017-06-21	10:45	11:45	New Resources to Support Military Family Quality to Life	Communities can often struggle to find the funds, personnel or capacity to meet the demands of today’s military families. This discussion will focus on identifying resources and partnership opportunities that communities may be overlooking when they attempt to address quality-of-life issues for military families.	William French, Executive Director, Armed Services YMCA Anthony Hernandez, Chief Operating Officer, Defense Credit Union Council Marcus S. Lingenfelter, Senior Vice President, Advancement, National Math + Science Initiative
